

Use-Case Flow Specification

Use Case: Book Counseling Session

Preconditions:

1. The employee has access to the Corporate Mental Wellness & Counseling Platform.
2. The employee has an anonymized pseudo-ID generated by the system.
3. At least one licensed therapist has available appointment time slots.

Postconditions:

1. A confidential counseling appointment is successfully created.
2. The appointment is associated with the employee's pseudo-ID.
3. The selected therapist can view the scheduled appointment without accessing the employee's corporate email or employee ID.

Main Success Scenario:

1. The employee selects the "Book Counseling Session" option.
2. The system displays available licensed therapists and their available appointment time slots.
3. The employee selects a preferred therapist.
4. The employee selects an available date and time slot.
5. The system displays the appointment details for confirmation.
6. The employee confirms the appointment.
7. The system creates the confidential counseling appointment and associates it with the employee's pseudo-ID.
8. The system updates the selected therapist's appointment schedule.
9. The system displays a booking confirmation to the employee.
10. The use case ends successfully.

Alternate Flow: Selected Time Slot Is No Longer Available

- 4a. The selected appointment time slot becomes unavailable before the booking is confirmed.
 - 4a1. The system informs the employee that the selected time slot is no longer available.

4a2. The system displays the remaining available appointment time slots.

4a3. The employee selects another available time slot.

4a4. The use case resumes at Step 5.